100 Thousand Poets for Change, September 24, 2011

Osu Kannon Ginko Walk, Nagoya, Japan

Statements for hoped for change in the world:

Bryony Ollier, UK/Japan

Statement for peace/change:
I hope that renewable energy becomes a real deal, power is harnessed in trying to re-plenish our world, and not individuals wealth and greed. This is an age of innovation, yet without the rich and powerful's backing our world is helpless.

Suzuko Tanaka, Japan

'Don't spoil nature by nuclear energy.'

Lisa Chow, Canada/Japan

Statement:
My wish is that all beings will achieve inner peace and outer peace throughout the universe. Love & Light.

Ayako Mima, Japan

I've been studying English for a long time. I believe English is the opening door to the world. Understanding of the words is needed by me. Peace of the world is my best desire.

Niira, Mie prefecture, Japan

Hello everyone.
We are very big trouble in Japan now. But, we are not sorrowful. Because we don't forget big spirit like a Haiku sense. Smell, sight, see, breath, taste.
  Love and peace.

Vashti Bandy, USA/Japan Statement for world change:
I want everyone to be free to pursue their dreams without fear of oppression, either self or outwardly imposed.

Yumi Kajita, Japan

Message:
Hello!!
There haiku made in Osu-city in Japan.
I think it's a mysterious place (zone).
I made Haiku change my feeling when I stayed there.
Thank you so much.
Love & peace.

Steven R. Shaw

'Why are you so sensitive,' he said to me.
I held my tongue and thought,
'Maybe it's because you are so insensitive.'
I dunno, I guess I was overboard, but it all seems so obvious to me; to not compromise another's convenience for the sake of your own. I guess, obviously, that's not (yet?) a universal concept.

Brian Cullen

changing lives
one person at a time being who you are

Leah Ann Sullivan, USA/Japan

I hope for more international friendship. It begins with just two people.

HAIKU AND SHORT POEMS

Bryony Ollier

north wind mosaic tile star of sunlight through dancing leaves tied up tree mountain.
disinfectant dust
a dinosaur eats concrete a blackbird caws

half shadow street
a lace curtain drawn reveals dark space Happy birthday Equinox

Tanaka Suzuko

glittering stuffs
smell of noise
this is Osu
here comes autumn

a woman with a silent prayer autumn breeze, please make her wish come true in autumn breeze

a monk is standing alone sound of his bell

Lisa Chow

sweet smell of flowers monks chanting in Osu Kannon temple meditating breathing listening lotus flower peace feathers floating through the air silence

monks chant
cool breeze on skin
waft of lilies
a monk rings a bell green trees on a burial ground sun sparkling down

Ayako Mimahu

takoyaki smells good husband orders from heaven he says hurry up

autumn fields call but can't start from here now a detective story catches me

Niira

autumn sky
seen through cold air
buzzing pigeon

bigger ice cream
look up young girl
melt smiley

Vashti Bandy

flowers huddled tight
in the wind a white truck dreams of blue

feeding birds
jump with flailing wings electric slide

graffiti tags
the dead man's hill
I don't know his name

begging birds
peck beaks to golden seed a river
Yumi Kajita

insect sounds
the sound of leaves rubbing against each other wakes up sixth sense

foot steps, polka dots sunlight filtering though the trees I feel human

Steven R. Shaw

Autumn reggae sound last night jumps to day lie down R. Mutt in a gale

on the first short day framed with feasts of words and sounds last summer's reggae drops in when counting your words dada is a convenience the day it's short now

dada matte green tea a brown bag lined college satisfaction is someone sleeping

Brian Cullen

two on three do come together in my name to write their lines of love

Naomi Blyth, 4 years old, Japan

Toys

a butterfly clapping its wings like my toys
at the zoo
Andrew Blyth, Australia/Japan

See Pdf of photo haiku on 100 Thousand Poets for Change website. Text/title:

see a haiku
short, long, short views of Osu Kannon shopping arcade

Kim Horne, Japan

flying into the sun
the universe glows with you breathless is my morn

alternative version:
flying into the sun
the youniverse glows in me breathless is my morn

Trudi Wimberley, USA/Japan

Memories of Osu

temple, pigeons, sweat Brazilian dancers, O-bon taiko, uchiwa